Mission Statement

“Mining for Gold”

Andrew Carnegie was responsible for developing 43 Millionaires. When he was asked what attributes he looked for in order to make a millionaire, he replied, “I mine for gold.” You often move tons of dirt to find a single ounce of gold, but you don’t look for the dirt, you look for the gold. It’s the same way in working with people; you must look for the gold, the good.

Are we looking for gold or looking for dirt? Do we really look for the best in our coworkers, children, or students? It has been said that parents and teachers give children 18 negative remarks, to one positive praise. As we see people, we treat them, and as we treat them, often they become. Therefore, Reagan County ISD’s Board of Trustees, administration, staff, parents, and community are dedicated to “Mining for Gold” in our future successful citizens of Reagan County.
